

ANNEX G Environmental Impacts

This project is Type A. It examines the regulatory role of government, also for water quality control. The alignment of regulatory and developmental aspects of local-level infrastructure development allows designing realistic measures to avoid harmful downstream impacts. Further, the study of indigenous normative frameworks includes notions of environmental protection and water quality control. Although enforcement mechanisms may have eroded, such notions can be revived.